

ALLIES IN SUBSTANCE ABUSE PREVENTION & THE NH TRAINING INSTITUTE ON ADDICTIVE DISORDERS

Present:

FOSTERING POPULATION LEVEL PREVENTION IN COMMUNITIES

with Dennis Embry, PhD.

A 6 HOUR TRAINING EVENT ON THURSDAY, AUGUST 13, 2009

8:30 a.m. – 4:00 p.m. (registration begins at 8:00 a.m.)

at Timberlane High School Performing Arts Center Main Auditorium, 36 Greenough Rd, Plaistow, NH 03865

DESCRIPTION OF THE PRESENTATION: Behavioral kernels are a powerful way to make prevention an everyday activity in communities everywhere. Every month, trusted scientific journals publish studies about low-cost or no-cost preventive strategies. These strategies are scientifically known as behavioral kernels. Kernels are the smallest unit of scientifically proven methods to influence behavior. There are over 50 no-cost or low-cost evidence based kernels already documented. The list is growing each day as scientists understand this break-through in thinking. Kernels can be combined in many ways to affect all sorts of problems. Because kernels are inexpensive, they don't receive much marketing and advertising for awareness. This workshop will explore various low-cost and no-cost strategies for community prevention, that when applied can dramatically reduce or prevent the burden of many afflictions harming our children, youth and adults. Participants will learn about getting communities, counties and states to adopt policies about specific low-cost, evidence-based kernels that can affect population level indicators for prevention. An outcome of the workshop will be specific policies that can be implemented to achieve community level change. Participants will: apply evidence-based kernels to their own lives and work; develop a plan to take at least one kernel to a community level; and practice mobilizing many to join in prevention for everyone.
